Fall Foliage Glamping (Glam Camping) and Hiking in the North Country

DATE: Sat. 9/19 – Sun. 9/20
Time: 6AM (Sat) – 6PM (Sun)
Pre-trip meeting – Weds. 9/16 at 7PM in Rec. Center Classroom
MEETING LOCATION: By the Dairy Bar – look for the Campus Rec. van

General Info: Glamping means “glam camping”. Want to camp without leaving all of the comforts? This is the weekend for you. We’ll travel to northern NH and spend the weekend in a yurt with bunk beds. Day one will be a hike of Mt. Madison followed by a gourmet-esque dinner prepared by your leaders. Enjoy the evening cruising the backroads looking for moose. Before heading south on Sunday, we’ll take a hike to Ice Gulch, where ice sometimes persists year-round in the unique cliff and boulder environment.

Clothing and Equipment: Please see the attached equipment list. Weather and conditions can vary and change quickly in the White Mountains. Please come prepared with items on the list! Please avoid cotton! No clothing such as jeans and sweatshirts will be allowed. Please see the attached equipment list. Many items are available to borrow – email requests to borrow items to outdoor.adventures@unh.edu with the item and size (if applicable).

Food: All food from lunch on Sat. through lunch on Sun. will be provided. Please make notes of any allergies or dietary restrictions on your Med. Form. If you’d like to give more details regarding your food needs, contact outdoor.adventures@unh.edu.

Expectations: Because of the camaraderie involved in a group outing and the safety aspect, we will remain together as a group when hiking. We will also expect each member to contribute to the group by helping out with cooking, cleaning and other camp tasks. This will be a great experience to meet and bond with new people.

Instructions for completing the following paperwork:

Please complete the following Medical Information form and Liability Waiver. Once completed, please drop them off at the Rec. Center front desk. Forms are due at least a week prior to the trip.

Please send any questions to outdoor.adventures@unh.edu

Thanks for joining us for an adventure!
This clothing list is intentionally specific because we want you to be safe and to enjoy the out of doors. It's best to be prepared for cold and wet, no matter what the weather forecast. It is better to dress with layers so that you can regulate your temperature based on your activity level and changes in the weather. We strongly recommend synthetics (thermax, capilene, bergalene and other non-cottons) or wool because these materials retain their insulating qualities when damp whereas cotton does not. Dressing according to this concept will increase the quality and enjoyment of your outdoor experience.

A Crash Course in Dressing Smart and Cheap for the Outdoors

What to Wear:

Two keys to dressing for an enjoyable outdoor experience:

1. Layers: Dressing with multiple layers instead of one allows you to adjust to different levels of exertion. You’ll be cool while hiking, warm in camp and toasty in your sleeping bag.

2. Anything but Cotton: As the saying goes, "Cotton is rotten!" It may be comfortable but cotton won’t keep your warm when you get wet, while wool, fleece, capilene, and other synthetic materials will. So leave the sweatshirt behind and take a fleece jacket or a wool sweater instead. The same goes for cotton socks (asking for blisters!) and jeans. Some brand name synthetic materials that are good cotton replacements are: Capilene, Thermamax, Bergelene, Duofold, MTS2. The two exceptions to the non-cotton rules are cotton t-shirts and underwear.

Three levels of layering:

1. Inner Layers: These thin non-cotton base layers are worn next to the skin. Long underwear from any outdoor store will do.

2. Insulating Layers: Warm, thick layers that are worn in camp and to sleep. Examples are fleece jackets or pants, expedition weight long underwear, fleece vests and wool sweaters. Puffy jackets work too. Down is ill advised in any season but winter because it loses all of its insulating value when wet.

3. Outer Layers: The most important outer layer will be your waterproof raingear. Waterproof, breathable fabrics like GoreTex are comfortable and work well but the common, inexpensive coated nylon raincoats will keep you dry. Many people also include quick-drying nylon layer like windpants.

Where to Get It:

Around Durham:
EMS on Arthur Brady Drive in Newington will be able to provide anything you are missing from your equipment list. They can be quite expensive but keep your eye out for sales, especially at the end of a season. Well cared for gear will last 10+ years. Other local stores Dicks Sporting Goods in Newington, and the Kittery Trading Post in Maine. There are also a few local ski shops that will carry some items like long underwear.

Online:
REI's website (www.rei.com) has lots of options and some great advice on choosing gear (see the expert advice section). Their outlet store (www.rei-outlet.com) also has great deals. Other websites to look through are Campmor (www.campmor.com), www.moosejaw.com and www.mgear.com.

Budget:
A trip to any of the local thrift stores (Savers in Newington, Goodwill in Dover, and several places in Portsmouth) can turn up very cheap wool or fleece layers. The REI Outlet (www.rei-outlet.com) also has great deals on clothes. Don’t forget the cheapest way to find those extra pair of mittens or long underwear is always to ask around and borrow some from a friend.
